A Growing Sentiment That There Will be No War

AN ANSWER RECEIVED

But Its Terms are Not Yet Made Public Has a Sufficient Apology Been Made War Is Not Desired

Washington, Jan. 26. It transpired late this afternoon that Minister Egan communicated to the secretary of state the reply of the Chilian government to the note of Secretary [illegible] of the 21st inst., as stated in these dispatches this morning from Santiago. [illegible] punctuality of the public [illegible] the Santiago dispatches was due to the fact that yesterday Mr Egan had notified the department that the Chilian government asked for two or three days longer in which to make its answer, owing to the absence of President Montt at the springs above Santiago. Public expectation has settled down to a delay of that length of time and the published statement of to-day, indicating that President Montt has returned to the capital was wholly unlooked for. It was not until to-night the fact of the reception of the message became circulated and the sentiment among public men was one of doubt and uncertainty. They knew not, at first, what to say on the subject when asked for opinions on the new phase of the matter.

The statement of the contents of the message in to-day's telegram is said to be practically correct. Conversation with those acquainted with the text of the note gives the impression that it was not satisfactory.

No one who was in a position to know them would consent to discuss the terms of the reply. The fact, however, that there is no reference to an apology for the assault upon the Baltimore's sailors is sufficient to account for the dissatisfaction of officials with its terms.

As to the Matta note, the offer of Chili is believed to be fully up to the demands made by the note of the 21st instant to Minister Egan. The [illegible] of the letter's recall is believed to have been sufficiently settled by the [illegible] of that note and therefore no reference to it in the reply was necessary. As [illegible] night if Chili apologized for the Baltimore incident the matter of amount of indemnity by way of reparation or whether or not anything should be paid to the families of Riggin and Turnbull, might very well become the subject of arbitration, but the apology must come first.

The proposition of Chili to [illegible] the whole thing into the supreme court for arbitration [illegible] [illegible] the only judge of [illegible]. It is recited that Chili [illegible] the jurisdiction and powers of [illegible] court are [illegible] [illegible] legislature and [illegible] [illegible] the supreme court cannot, and [illegible] jurisdiction over such a matter. One [illegible] or any number of them [illegible] five of [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible], by the terms of the constitution, is charged with conducting and [illegible] of diplomatic matters, and they probably would not consent, if they could, to turning them over to the judicial branch of the government. This point was urged in two [illegible] only recently. Mr. Blaine and the attorney general made a very strong contention that the supreme court cannot deal with a matter that is the subject of diplomatic dispute. This was in the Sayward case which grew out of the Behring sea dispute. The petition for a writ of prohibition in this case was taken under consideration by the court upon the ground that it was a legal question and not a diplomatic dispute that [illegible] before it.

The [illegible] in the Weil-La Abra claims now under [illegible] in the senate. Mexico [illegible] that the awards to American claimants in [illegible] were obtained by fraud, and [illegible] to have the money not yet paid to the claimants returned to her. It is proposed in [illegible] to refer the subject to the court of claims for examination and [illegible], with right of appeal to the supreme court. Mr. Hoar, chairman of the [illegible] judiciary committee, argued against the latter proposition on the ground that while congress might [illegible] jurisdiction in the court of claims to ascertain a fact upon examination, that court being the creature of congress [illegible] it could not confer [illegible] upon the supreme court [illegible] matters outside the regular course, that the court was created by the [illegible] power that created congress and derived its powers and authority from the same source.

The reply of Chili [illegible] the subject of a consultation between the president and Secretary Blaine at a late hour this afternoon, as well as at the meeting of the cabinet at noon. The views of the United States government upon the reply will probably not be communicated to Chili for a day or two.

In the meantime the text of the message of Minister Egan, it is expected, will be sent to the committee on foreign affairs in the two houses of congress for their information and to aid them in the consideration of the president's message and accompanying documents transmitted to-day.

Further inquiry to-night strengthens the impression that the reply of Chili is not satisfactory to the members of the United States government. Although the answer proposes, it is understood, to withdraw the Matta note, the tenor of the offer is not agreeable. And the proposition said to be contained in the reply to arbitrate the trouble, is taken to mean the whole question, whether or not Chili shall apologize as well as pay indemnity. Of course that will not be entertained, the United States must be the judge of the propriety of demanding an apology. That cannot be arbitrated.

Washington, Jan. 26.—At the request of members of the house foreign affairs committee, a special meeting was called to-day for the purpose of considering the president's message on the Chilian controversy and the accompanying correspondence. Printed copies of the correspondence were received and the members of the committee spent some time in the consideration of it. There was an informal discussion of a very general character, but no conclusion was reached, partly because of the latest phase given the case by the Associated Press despatch from Santiago announcing a substantial compliance by Chili with the request of the president and partly because of the necessity of a careful examination of the correspondence.

The telegram of Minister Pereira of Jan 4, and the notes of Minister Montt of Dec. 19 and Jan. 18 were regarded as an expression of good feeling on the part of Chili, and perhaps all that ought to be demanded. There was no [illegible], members said, to [illegible] the government of Chili and they were disposed to accept its offer as entirely satisfactory. It was pointed out that the Chilian government [illegible] responsibility for or sympathy with the attack on the sailors of the Baltimore, she would naturally be cautious in [illegible] on this subject, as the government's connection with the [illegible] would be one of the main [illegible] decision of either arbitrators or the United States supreme court would depend on considering the question of reparation. It was generally conceded that the proposition to refer to arbitration or to the decision of the United States supreme court the entire Baltimore incident is a proposition which cannot well be rejected by this government. There is one point in the despatch from Santiago however, that is somewhat mystifying to all and that is whether the Chilian government should deem it necessary to recede from its request for the withdrawal of Minister Egan since that was not one of the demands contained in the ultimatum of the United States. This is a concession which was not expected.

THE SENATE CONSULTS.

Washington Jan 26. The senate committee on foreign relations had a short session this morning but the meeting was of an informal character and was devoted to a brief exchange of opinions among the senators regarding the president's message and accompanying correspondence on the Chilian affair. A member of the committee stated that no action was taken on the correspondence, and nothing of importance took place at the meeting whatever relative to the Chilian situation. It is understood that the meeting was entirely harmonious, and that if any report on the message and correspondence is to be made it will not be done until the president has received an answer to his demands made in his ultimatum to Chili.

The committee adjourned shortly before the senate met, until to-morrow morning at 11 o clock, in order to allow the members to thoroughly familiarize themselves with the message and to examine the correspondence and particularly that portion of it relating to the testimony taken on the killing of the Baltimore sailors. It was deemed best by the committee not to consider the matter at any length or to take any decisive action one way or the other until it is settled beyond a peradventure that the Chilian government has given its answer to the president's ultimatum. While the senators of the committee [illegible] to-day were apparently disposed to accept the despatch from Santiago published this morning as entirely authentic, they were not willing to discuss the Chilian subject extensively until an authoritative statement had been received by the president to the effect that Chili had complied with the demands of the United States. A member of the committee, while declining to state the probable action that would be taken by the committee, said that if a report were made by the committee it would probably be submitted with very little delay.

TELLER'S OPINION.

Washington, Jan 26.—The senators generally were disinclined to express any opinion until after the official communication sent by Chili to the state department is made public.

Senator Teller still thought that the position of Chili was still somewhat indefinite. "I do not see," he said, "that there is anything to arbitrate so far. It does not appear that Chili has yet [illegible] that she will make compensation but merely suggests the reference of the whole Baltimore dispute to arbitration. However, I have no doubt that they will say they will pay whatever compensation is awarded. It is not a matter of vital importance to us how much compensation is. It is the principle involved that we are contending for. If they make their regret for the occurrence and withdraw their offensive note and make any kind of a proposition for compensation I have no doubt this government will accept it, however small it may be. It is not a question of money, but of preservation of our dignity in the matter."

[illegible] VIEW.

New York Jan 26.—The Herald's special from [illegible] says that [illegible] of deputies [illegible] by Deputy Gorgas brought the matter of the relations between Chili and the United States up for discussion. He thought that the minister should make some definite statement. In his opinion the United States was a great nation and just in its dealings, and he could not believe that there was any desire on her part to humiliate Chili. He urged the chamber to remember the position she assumed when the French occupied Mexico. To the United States, Gorgas continued, Chili and all the other South American republics must look for protection in the expounding and enforcing of the Monroe doctrine. Chili ought to meet the demands made upon her in a friendly manner and acknowledge, with regret, the unfortunate occurrences of which the complaint is made.

The sentiments expressed by Gorgas received a favorable impression upon all the members except Joaquin Walker-Martinez. He spoke against Gorgas's request, but his opposition was unimportant.

Replying to Senor Gorgas, Minister Pereira stated that an answer to the ultimatum of the United States had been sent to Egan which he hoped and believed would prove satisfactory to the United States, though he was not at liberty to divulge its contents.

At the meeting of the council of state which considered the ultimatum presented on the part of the United States, President Montt presided. The debate was prolonged for some three hours and there was some excited talk.

The Herald correspondent says that Minister Pereira proceeded for the consideration of the council a note to be sent in reply to the ultimatum of the United States, which expresses regret for the Baltimore incident and begs to submit that question to arbitration and asks to retire Matta's offensive note. This note was endorsed.

It is thought here that there is a possibility that the government of the United States will not regard the terms of the reply as satisfactory.

ACTIVITY AT SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, Jan 26.—Nothing was heard in San Francisco to-day but war talk. Sentiment here is unanimous for war if Chili does not make ample apology. There is great activity about military [illegible]. Plans for the batteries on the San Francisco shore are all completed and work is under way. Colonel Graham is platting the bay by triangulation for the benefit of artillerymen. In case of war San Francisco will be the chief base of supplies and the distributing point for men and munitions of war.

[illegible] English View

London, Jan. 26.—The Chronicle this morning publishes an article from an American correspondent bearing on the difficulty between the governments of the United States and Chili. The correspondent declares that when Mr. Blaine hurried to Washington two months ago, he pretended to be in favor of a policy of peace but in reality only wanted to gain time. He knew that a sudden war between the United States and Chili would mean defeat, perhaps disastrous for his country, which would be followed by a wave of adverse public opinion, which would sweep him and his party out of power. War with Chili followed by a military occupation of the country for some years would give American manufacturers a chance to capture the trade and would please Mr Blaine, who complained that the new American tariff had not made new markets. Once established in South America, it would be easy to find excuse to remain there, and it was probable that a revolution would break out in every South American republic which would endanger the immense English investments in these countries.

In conclusion, the correspondence says: "Mr Blaine wants and means a quarrel. He is ambitious and knows how to flatter the vanity and the love the Americans have for the almighty dollar. If England desires to avoid a war she had better counsel Chili to submit to the demands of the United States."

THE TIMES SAYS.

London, Jan, 27.—A dispatch to The Times from Santiago says: The Chilian cabinet is still [illegible] reply to the [illegible] America, which it is expected will be as conciliatory as possible. It will probably refer any differences mentioned in the note to Mr Egan delivered on Saturday which the ministers themselves fail to settle to the supreme court of the United States. Nothing, however is as yet definitely known. But for the appearance of American cruisers coming from the Atlantic this sudden recrudescence of the difficulty might be considered only as one of the many phases through which this strange case has been passed for months according to the exigencies of American home politics. The impending arrival of an American squadron at Valparaiso, however, imports an element of danger. The British minister arrived at Santiago to-day from Vina del Mar.

A more recent despatch from Santiago says that the Chilian foreign minister in accordance with the compliance arrived at by President Montt and the cabinet and after consulting with the council of state which is a merely formal act, the council being identical with the president and cabinet has answered the American ultimatum in terms that it is believed will satisfy the president and government of America. In view of the disparity between the forces of the two powers it would seem that Chili had no other resource than to make the sacrifices of dignity necessary to satisfy the powerful nation making the demand on it.

A Victory for Judge Rucker

Denver, Jan 27.—Judge A. W. Rucker recovered judgment in the district to-day against Harvey Young, J B. Wheeler of New York, and others, for a sixth interest in the famous Aspen mine at Aspen, and a sixth of the proceeds of that mine since November, '84 amounting to over $12,000,000. The decision was rendered by Judge Allen, and is sweepingly in favor of Judge Rucker. On October 20, 1884 Rucker secured from Harvey Young an option for a sixth interest in the Aspen mine. The option was for $15 000 and upon the payment of that sum by Rucker in thirty days Young was to deed to him the sixth interest in question. Rucker claims that on Nov. 19, 1884, and before his option expired he tendered Young $15 000 and demanded his deed which Young refused to make; that within thirty days Young deeded the interest to J B Wheeler; that Wheeler not only knew of the existence of the option and of Rucker's offer to perform and Young's refusal, but it was through his influence that Young failed to keep his contract.

New York Stock Market.

New York, Jan 26.—There was an active demand for stocks during the morning dealings to-day and some round amounts changed hands. The tone was firm throughout, and with the exception of a few slight reactions, prices went up on steady buying, mainly by the shorts, who covered vigorously on the announcement that Chili had backed down and had agreed to concede most of the demands made by the United States. C C C & St. L., [illegible], Manhattan Elevated, the Whisky Trust, Northern Pacific preferred, Louisville and Nashville, Omaha and St Paul were the chief features and absorbed [illegible] of the speculative interest. They were all active and strong and led the advance. [illegible] were generally [illegible]. The advance ranged from ¼ to 2¼ [illegible]. Some idea of the activity of [illegible] may be gleaned from the fact that in two hours to midday [illegible] shares were sold. There was [illegible] dealing after 12 o'clock at a fair amount of business was transacted. Prices continued firm and about the top figures of the day were current at the close of [illegible]. [illegible] was the feature of [illegible] trading. It showed an advance at its highest point of 4 per cent. Dealings in the stock were [illegible] all sorts of Wall street rumors in connection with the stock. It was said that Cammack, the great bear, [illegible] was short several thousand shares of it in the office of Lorenzo L. White, the broker of the New York Life Insurance company. Mr. White was said to have borrowed from the New York Life company. To-day for some reason the New York Life is said to have called the stock. Hence Cammack had to buy it on the stock exchange.

Another story was that the Equitable Life had bought several thousand shares of the stock. The closing prices for the general market were ¼ to 1½ higher than yesterday. The total sales were 487,584.

Garza Surrounded

San Antonio, Tex, Jan 26.—The state rangers under the personal command of W. H. Mabry, adjutant general of the state, expect to have Garza surrounded before to-morrow night. The wily revolutionary leader will be called upon to surrender, and if he makes a resistance, he will be taken dead or alive. The rendezvous of Garza is at a ranch about thirty miles south of Alice, Tex., and the rangers are within ten miles of the place to-night. Capt George F Chase and the other commanders of United States troops in that section have not been called upon by General Mabry to assist the rangers. It is confidently expected that startling developments will take place within the next thirty-six hours.

FREE COINAGE AGAIN

Senator Morrill Reports a Bill for an International Conference

TELLER'S PLAN MODIFIED

The Policy of this Government Declared to be Strictly Bimetallic Proceedings of Both Houses of Congress

Washington, Jan 26. Senator Morrill from the finance committee to-day reported the following substitute prepared by Senator Aldrich and unanimously approved by the committee) to the joint resolution introduced by Senator Teller to provide for an international bimetallic agreement. That the policy of the United States to use both gold and silver as full legal tender money and to maintain at all times a parity in the value of the coins of both metals is hereby reaffirmed and the president is authorized to invite the governments of such countries as he may deem advisable to join the United States in a conference to be held at a time and place to be agreed upon such conference to be called with a view of securing a permanence in the relative value of gold and silver at a common coinage ratio to be mutually agreed upon through international agreement providing for the enlarged monetary use of silver and for giving to that metal equal mintage rights with gold (a permanence in the relative value of gold and silver) at a common coinage ratio to be mutually agreed upon.

The president shall, by and with the advice of the senate appoint three commissioners who shall attend such conference on behalf of the United States, shall report the doings thereof to the president who shall transmit the same to congress. Said commissioners shall receive the sum of $5000 each and their reasonable expenses, to be approved by the secretary of state, and the amount necessary to pay such compensation and expenses is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

FIFTY-SECOND CONGRESS.

SENATE.

Washington, Jan 26.—The proceedings in the senate to-day were dull and uninteresting. Mr Morrill from the finance committee reported back with a substitute the joint resolution to provide for an international bimetallic agreement.

Mr Dawes from the committee on Indian affairs reported back house bill for the completion of the allotment of lands to the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians. The bill was passed and now goes to the president.

Mr. George offered a resolution for the appointment of a select committee of five to inquire into the causes of the present low price of cotton and of the depressed condition of agriculture in the [illegible]. Referred.

A bill to amend the act granting right of way to the [illegible] and Santa Fe Railway company through the Indian territory was taken from the table [illegible].

The senate bill appropriating $100,000 for a public building at Trinidad, Colo., was taken from the calendar and passed.

The La Abra bill was taken up and discussed until adjournment.

HOUSE.

The Chilian situation is the absorbing question of the hour, and until the public mind is allayed as to the probabilities of war it is hardly likely that the people's representatives will settle down to the more sedate consideration of routine legislation. In the house to-day the feverish anxiety for the latest information was early manifested in the resolution of Mr Breckenridge of Kentucky calling upon the president for all additional despatches not contained in his communication of yesterday, and while the resolution was finally referred to the committee on foreign affairs, it was only done after the assurance of the members of the committee that the resolution would be reported back without delay in case its adoption seemed necessary to secure all information at hand on the subject. There was present throughout the entire discussion of this question in the house to-day an almost breathless desire on the part of the members of the foreign affairs committee to retain within its jurisdiction control of the Chilian situation and exercise in an untrammelled manner all the prerogatives of that committee. On the other hand there was quite as plainly manifested the desire of the house in general to know all that diplomacy knows in the hour of the nation's crisis and while the foreign affairs committee finally secured the custody of the resolution the debate sufficed to give stern warning of the intention of the house to guard jealously all its prerogatives of the supreme tribunal of the final consideration of the "census bill". Precedents, rules and legislative formula got but little reverence from the members of the house, who regard the situation as one of too great gravity to warrant the wasting of a minute's time in deferential courtesy to the committee on foreign affairs. After several hours' debate Mr. Breckenridge's resolution was referred to the committee on foreign affairs without objection.

Mr Catchings (Mississippi) now called up the report of the committee on rules containing the proposed new code of rules, the debate being limited to seven hours. Mr Catchings made a brief explanation of the new code, stating that it was composed substantially of the rules governing the Fiftieth congress, the modifications being in the interest of the despatch of business and a retrenchment of public expenditures.

Mr Reed (Maine) criticized the proposed rules and extolled the rules of Fifty-first congress. As far as the introduction of bills was concerned the proposed change would result in a consumption of the time of the house, an annoyance to members and exceeding irregularity. He sarcastically congratulated the Democratic party on taking a step forward in advocating a rule making it in order to call up for consideration a report from the committee on rules and pending the consideration the speaker may entertain one motion to adjourn but after the result is announced he shall not entertain any other dilatory motion. He was glad to know that it has come to be [illegible] for that committee to present bills for the consideration of the house. But even this advantage was one which under the proposed rules whenever the committee on rules wished to cut off filibustering it could do so and it was right that it should. But the majority of the house should at all times have the same rights. Under this rule the minority might rule except where the committee on rules were to take the initiative. The minority was estopped when it had the committee on rules on its side and it was of no account when the committee was opposed to it.

Mr Lanham (Texas) availed himself of the wide scope given to 'general debate' to make an earnest but brief speech in favor of the free coinage of silver. If congress failed to pass a measure for free silver coinage popular condemnation could not be escaped and the responsibility for such failure could not be avoided. No threadbare excuse would be in order before the bar of public opinion. The demonetization of silver had covertly, if not fraudulently been accomplished against the interest of the people.

Mr. Bowers of California criticized the proposed rules. His people wanted an appropriation for their [illegible]. If he understood the [illegible] of the committee [illegible] "was not in it." [Laughter.]

Mr Raynor of Maryland replied to Mr Lanham of Texas. History, he said, had been read in vain, the cardinal doctrines of [illegible] had been misapprehended if it was believed that there was any truth and logic in the proposition for free silver.

Mr Burrows of Michigan brought the house back to the subject under consideration and entered into a critical analysis of the proposed rules and Mr Mills of Texas [illegible] reply.

Mr McKenna of California also addressed the house in criticism of the new code and the house adjourned until to-morrow.

A Private Soldier

While it must be confessed a great many [illegible] are enlisted in the army, the greater part of the enlisted men are [illegible] of men as one could wish [illegible]. The Hacklegs and the [illegible] [illegible] to-day Uncle Sam requires every man who wishes to enlist under his flag to bring a certificate of good character from his last employer and to satisfy the recruiting officer in many ways that he has good habits. This rule has been in force only a few years and has already improved the character of the enlisted men and decreased the number of desertions to a wonderful degree.

The army is a better thing for the average man than is generally supposed. While the pay is thirteen dollars a month, a small sum, it must be remembered that it is thirteen dollars a month over and above all expenses for food, clothes, lodging, hospital attendance and education. The clothing allowance is so large too that every man is able to save more or less of it according to the care he takes of his clothes and some of them make a very considerable item of this.

When the enlisted man re-enlists he receives an increase of pay and he has the opportunity of becoming through efficiency a non-commissioned officer with a still greater increase of pay. Moreover if he is ambitious and has or gets a fairly good education he is afforded every help rather than hindered as is popularly supposed, from becoming a commissioned officer.

THE SOLDIER'S HOME.

The army is to the enlisted man a home, an insurance company and a bank. The government permits him to draw interest on any sum of money he may deposit and it is a tolerable safe institution. If he is injured or used up through sickness he is either nursed back to health or pensioned for life. If he grows old in the government service he is retired on a pension precisely as an officer is. And after all the work of a soldier is not particularly hard. That it is not a disagreeable one is attested by the fact that a great majority of the enlisted men, and necessarily the better ones, re-enlist and practically spend their whole lives in the army.

The happiness and comfort of the soldier depend principally upon the commanding officer of the company to which he may be assigned. The company is a family, and good company commanders so regard it. The average soldier is a child from his very training. He must eat, sleep and work at a certain time named by another, and he is well fed and well clothed according to the ability of the captain or lieutenant who has charge of him. He cannot even buy a handkerchief without the permission of such an officer.

If a man be drafted into a good company there is no reason in the world why he should not enjoy life to the utmost. He will be furnished an abundance of good clothes, and will be taught to take a pride in keeping them in good condition. He will be furnished with food, not only plentiful but of the best quality and of sufficient variety.

LIFE IN THE ARMY.

Out of his small pay an English soldier has to pay for his vegetables, and any extra meat he may have. Our soldiers get [illegible] than they can eat of everything [illegible] is furnished, and are permitted to trade the surplus off for any dainties from the commissary department that they may wish at government contract price. Then, too, every company in the army has a company garden that supplies it with vegetables, and again the garden is a success according to the efforts of the company commander. Then there are ways in which a company makes money to supply its mess with still greater dainties and its reading room with literature, and often with billiard and pool tables.

Beyond keeping himself and his accoutrements clean attending drills and doing guard duty, the enlisted man has to take his turn every three or four days doing the work of a laborer about the post. This is the crying shame of the army today. The men are not enlisted as artisans nor as laborers, and they should not be expected to do such work. It is worthy of notice that they do the work, nevertheless, very cheerfully. Some day, when the officers have agitated the matter enough, all this will be changed, and the soldier will be expected to do nothing but actual military duty.

The soldier on the frontier has even more amusement than the officer. The writer, once a lieutenant of cavalry has many a time alone with a company in the field wished that he could sit down at the camp fire with the men and enjoy their jokes and share in their conversation. They have the opportunity of playing all sorts of games and the time to practice them too.

A GOOD COMPANY

It is probable that they have more society at a government post than they would have at their homes and they usually have opportunities for sport in the way of hunting and fishing that would be envied by many a rich New Yorker. There are always post schools for the education of the soldier and there are always post libraries that contain a sufficient number of books to keep them busy reading.

The writer served in a company of cavalry in which three men had saved up considerably over $1,000, and almost all the others some less than that, down to twenty five dollars. Half the company were men who were on their second third or fourth enlistment. They had a billiard table that was said to be the best one in Arizona, a garden that yielded a profit from the sale of vegetables of over eighty dollars a month besides furnishing the company table with every variety that could be asked for, a drove of forty or more hogs (very valuable live stock in the far west), chickens, a milk cow and a mule to save the men from the harder part of the company work. The company fund of ready money amounted at times when the writer had charge of it, to several hundreds of dollars. The men had a splendidly equipped reading room and formed altogether an exceptional company.

The result of such a state of affairs was the gratifying fact that only one man had deserted from the company in years, while all the time there were dozens of applications from men in other companies to be transferred to this one whenever a vacancy occurred in it. It is a fact that the men had better food and a greater variety of it than any officers at the different posts where it was stationed while the writer was with it and it is doubtful whether any men of the same class in the country were half as comfortable and happy as these same men in that cavalry company.—New York Times.

Conservative London

London largest city in the world as it is, is nevertheless "away behind the times." The police patrol wagon, so common in the United States, is unknown in London, although the city council is now considering the advisability of adopting this valuable aid to the police department. Telephones are not as generally used in London as in the United States, and it is but a short time since that they were rather uncommon sights in ordinary business offices.

DRIFTING TO SEA.

New York Garbage Scows on Their Way to Mid Ocean

MANY LIVES IN PERIL

Boats Containing One Hundred and Twenty-five Italians Adrift on a Raging Ocean An Unsuccessful Search

New York, Jan 26. The tow boat Webster and two garbage scows belonging to the street cleaning department were seen drifting to sea to-day. The Webster's propeller had been broken and she was unmanageable. The tug boat H. S. Nichols, which also had two scows in tow anchored her scows and went to the assistance of the Webster. On account of the heavy seas the Nichols could not approach near enough to render the Webster any aid. In the meantime the Nichols scows had broken their anchorage and were also adrift. The Nichols immediately came to this city for assistance, leaving the four scows and the Webster drifting out to sea. There are supposed to be 120 men (mostly Italians) on the scows, and the Webster has a crew of five, which makes a total of 125 men in imminent danger of being drowned. The sea is very rough and is liable at any time to sweep the scows clear of their human freight. Steamers are now searching for them.

LATER.

The Webster and her tow have not yet been rescued as reported late this afternoon. The scows seen off Fire Island were the two which the Nichols had anchored in Gravesend bay. It appears they had broken their anchorage and were also drifting across the ocean. Half a dozen powerful tugs from this city and several from Newport are searching for the missing vessels but up to a late hour nothing had been heard from these or the missing vessels. At the street cleaning department it was stated this evening that the scows each have a deck house sufficiently large to shelter all the men aboard them. They are also provided with a stove and stove and have provisions for twenty four days for just such an emergency as this. If the missing vessels are not heard from by to-morrow morning a searching expedition will leave this city in search of them.

Three Locomotives Wrecked

Omaha, Jan. 26.—A serious as well as peculiar collision happened at the Union depot to-day by which three Burlington engines were badly smashed, entailing a loss of $20,000. A "light" engine had backed into the depot ahead of an accommodation train. The switch was left open and a through train dashed into the engine telescoping it with the accommodation and demolishing the three locomotives. Fireman Dole received a broken arm and Engineer Drefcorn a sprained leg.

The Mob's Ultimatum.

Anthony, Kan., Jan 26.—There is no longer any doubt as to the purpose of the leaders of the recent mob. Judge Botkin has secured reliable intelligence of their ultimatum which is that the county attorney must drop the prosecutions, recall all warrants, Judge Botkin must resign and some of his friends must move out of the district. The wishes of the leaders must be consulted by the governor in the appointment of a successor to Botkin.

Rio Grande Earnings.

Denver, Jan 26.—The estimated earnings of the Denver and Rio Grande for the third week in January are as follows: Freight, $123,000; passenger, $40,000; express and mails, $15,500; an increase over the same time of last year, of $18,983.

Weather Indications.

ROYAL ARCANUM

The Beautiful Building Being Erected by the Order in Boston

The beautiful new Royal Arcanum building which is in process of construction in Boston is intended as the office building for the order, where its immense insurance business will be transacted and where the invaluable archives relating to the order and its benefit interests will be safely preserved. The building is to be five stories high, the first two of stone and the other three stories of pressed brick with stone trimmings, fireproof and constructed in the most substantial manner. The contract calls for the completion of the building by May 1, 1892, and it is intended to have the dedicatory exercises take place at the next meeting of the supreme council in June. The building of this Royal Arcanum edifice becomes a matter of personal interest to every individual member of this order, emphasizing as it does the continued prosperity and lasting stability of the institution, and at the same time furnishing public evidence of a rock rooted solidity among the recognized financial institutions of the land. This building and the lot upon which it rests are to be paid for from the accumulated funds of the supreme council without one cent of cost to the members of the order.

The financial statement of the W. O. R. fund is as follows. Balance, $[illegible]; held for delayed claims, $10,500; received on assessments, $310,621.53; total, $[illegible]; paid benefits, $165,000; held for delayed claims, $10,500; balance, Nov 30 1891, $[illegible]. The total resources are Cash on hand [illegible] due on assessments, $[illegible]; total, $[illegible]; 69 full rate and 2 half rate, officially reported, and 63 semiofficially reported, partially estimated $[illegible] estimated excess of resources to meet death claims for December 221, of 41. Nov 30 there were 123,613 members in 1,401 councils.

New York council No 348, is unquestionably the banner council of the order. It had 1,450 members Dec. 1 and is constantly growing. The council was organized in 1880.

The Royal Arcanum was organized fourteen years ago with nine members in Boston. Six of the nine are yet alive. What a marvelous thing it must be to them to read the record of the growth of the order.

There are three councils on Staten Island.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Rapid Increase of the Order During the Year

Since the last supreme council the membership of the Knights of Pythias has greatly increased. The estimated number now in the ranks of all the lodges in America is 350,000. Of these Pennsylvania takes the lead with something over 40,000, while Ohio comes next with 34,000 to 35,000. Pennsylvania has four supreme representatives and Ohio will be awarded that number as soon as she acquires 40,000 members. New lodges have been instituted at many points.

General Carnahan has granted a warrant for a division uniform rank at Corydon, Ind.

Indianapolis has the largest lodge in the order. It numbers 600 members.

Supreme Secretary Kennedy of the endowment rank reports. The second quarter of the fifteenth fiscal year of the rank ending Sept. 30, 1891, exhibits increasing interest. Sixty four new sections have been organized, 1,462 new members admitted [illegible] the new endowment.

Pueblo papers naturally try to do what little they can to induce people to believe that the natural way into Cripple Creek is by way of that city or Canon City. The facts and the geography are against them however, and their efforts need only amuse without alarming us.

The Advocate wishes to know how it is, if the free coinage agitation stops the investment of eastern capital in Colorado that the new High school bonds were in such demand and sold at a premium. The fact that these bonds, principal and interest, are payable in gold coin, ought to be a sufficient answer.

The course of lectures to be given in aid of the free reading room is a series of good entertainments for the benefit of a good cause. They deserve large patronage. The proceeds of the lectures will go to the purchase of new books, so that everyone may feel that besides getting the full value of his money in intellectual enjoyment, he is also making a permanent investment for the benefit of the city.

At the recent joint meeting of the Colorado College Scientific society and the Unity club of this city, the paper of President Slocum upon "Weismann's Theory of Heredity" was listened to with great interest and gave rise to general and very animated discussion. It is to be regretted that very many more of our intelligent citizens were not present to take a hand in the debate. Certainly the novelty of the theory itself and the lucid exposition of it by President Slocum was greatly enjoyed by all who were there. The character of the paper naturally brings to mind the Scientific society and its objects. Besides the monthly meetings which it conducts this society publishes its transactions in a pamphlet very creditable to the college from which it takes its name. Comparatively few of such publications can be found among the colleges of the country on account of the difficulty of obtaining contributions representing original and thoughtful work from busy and overburdened professional men. Primarily of course the articles contributed bring to the notice of the scientific world the labors and successes of the individual writers, but beyond this such publications call the attention of all readers to the institution in which the scientific activity is displayed. It is with this end in view that our professors and active members consent to publish the results of their researches in a college annual instead of sending them to more widely circulated and influential journals. The society has adopted the recognized means of introducing itself into the great family of scientific workers, in the publication of its transactions. Already The Colorado College Studies have received a hearty recognition from prominent colleges and learned bodies in various parts of the country and even from some foreign societies, and the courtesy of exchange of publications has been accorded to it. By the continuance of its publication the society wishes to maintain the friendly relations thus far formed, and also to extend its circle of interested acquaintances. In this way it is reasonable to expect that the college will become more widely known and respected, and that not only will benefit accrue to it, but in many ways the interests of this community also will be advanced. The maintenance of such a publication as The Colorado College Studies involves much labor and sacrifice on the part of the members of the society, not the least of them is the raising of the funds to pay for the printing and mailing. About $200 per annum is needed for this purpose, and the tax on the active membership is especially burdensome. At the meeting mentioned a good friend of the college suggested that a number of the public spirited residents of the city would willingly receive honorary membership in the society and become its patrons by the payment of an annual fee of $10. The friend proved the sincerity of his interest by offering to become one of the helpers in this manner. The society hopes that this opportune suggestion may find ready response from those who sympathize with its aims and purposes, and who are able to give the needed assistance. There is still a deficit of $50 or $60 on the last issue of the studies, and without some generous assistance from without the burden of another publication will be especially severe upon those who are thus disinterestedly laboring to advance the work and position of our college.

We cordially commend the communication printed in another column in regard to the superior advantages of this city as a place of residence. The grumblers in any community may be divided into two classes, those who cannot see the advantages, and those who object to paying for them. There are some people for instance who, whenever there is a cloudy day here do not fail to exclaim that it is much worse than anything they ever experienced in the east, and all the meteorological tables in the world cannot convince them to the contrary. Then there are others who agree that Colorado Springs ought to [illegible] advantages superior to cities of far greater size, and of several times its age, but that in order to maintain our [illegible] we must have sewers, water [illegible], and all other public improvements of the very best, and yet [illegible] to think that all this can be [illegible] out its costing anyone anything to speak of. The fact is that there has been crowded into the history of the twenty years growth of Colorado Springs the improvements that might reasonably have required a century for their completion. All this has been done with singular wisdom and economy. Of course if we had no schools, no water works, no sewer system, the taxes would be much lower, but we imagine that there are very few taxpayers who would see all these things removed for the purpose of reducing their assessment. Some talk has been made that if the present state of things was to continue, or if taxes were to be much higher than they are now there would be an exodus of the invalids to some other place, such as Canon City, where there is less extravagance. Suppose the invalids did go to Canon City or some other. To make their stay healthy and agreeable the same expenses would have to be incurred that have wisely been made here, and at the end of a few years they would find themselves in a city with equal taxation but with far less advantages, because the situation of Colorado Springs, bestowed upon it by nature is such that no other place in the state can hope to equal it as a residence town. One of the most amusing of the complaints made against Colorado Springs just at this particular time is that property is held at too high a figure, and that this fact prevents many people from coming here and making their homes with us. We suppose it is true that the lots in Colorado Springs with all the advantages natural and artificial which attach to them are not held upon the same level as they are in other communities which do not possess equal privileges. Lots are very much cheaper for instance in Ramah or Falcon, and yet the process by which values are determined is the same in one case as it is in another. We have not yet heard of any disposition even among those who believe that real estate values are too high to place their own property for sale at any less than the market rates. If real estate values are high it is simply because there is good reason to believe that the property is worth as much as is asked for it. A fall in prices would be one of the worst things that could happen to us, because it would show a loss of confidence in the future of the city, which would be far worse than the slight accretion of population that might result from it. The fact is that the people of Colorado Springs are remarkably fortunate. Starting in the first place with a great many natural advantages, in some respects with unsurpassed advantages, they have added their improvements in the wisest possible way, in a way to insure the health and the comfort of those who have taken up their residence here and to make additional attractions for those who may consider taking up an abode with us. If the debt of the city were for things which were of no benefit, if it represented money that had been stolen or squandered there would be good reason for complaint and dread. But as it is, the fact that this amount of money has been spent in the way that it has constitutes one of the very best of the reasons for our future growth. It represents artificial attractions quite as important as any of those given us by nature, and no one who is acquainted with the facts in the case ought to object to the payment of an additional tax on account of such evident and valuable blessings. In conclusion we would remind our readers that while taxation is high in Colorado Springs, it is not excessively so. It is not high as compared with many of the other cities and counties of the state which have far less to show in the way of permanent investment; nor is it high when everything is taken into consideration, in comparison with eastern cities where public improvements are progressing at an equally rapid rate and where equal advantages are offered to residents.

Colorado Springs Abroad.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO., Jan. 26, 1892.
To the Editor of THE GAZETTE:

Two or three incidents have occurred lately to remind me of the good fortune we enjoy by living in this favored city. A neighbor moved away last October, saying that some other place would suit him better than Colorado Springs. His physician here has received one letter from him from Asheville, N. C., in which he declares that the dampness and cloudy weather of Asheville did not suit one from Colorado. Another letter has just been received from him at Los Angeles, Cal., in which he declares that the murky and rainy climate of California did not suit his family at all and that they are all coming back to Colorado Springs immediately, and requests the doctor to secure a dwelling for them at once. Such is the experience of very many who have the means to try experiments at large cost and great trouble, and their conclusions at least should be known, to aid us in appreciating our blessings and being contented and happy.

A letter just received from Philadelphia says that from the 8th day of this month till the 16th no glimpse of the sun was had in the city, but that day and night a damp, murky atmosphere hung over the streets. So it has been in Chicago and St. Louis. Do we wonder, therefore, that the grippe has increased the death rate 100 per cent. in all eastern cities? That from the Atlantic seaboard all the way back to the highlands of Kansas and New Mexico uncounted thousands have fallen victims to this prevailing disease? Only our own high and dry situation has delivered us from its ravages. Few cases, and those of a light order, have existed here. In Missouri the life insurance companies are some of them bankrupt from the unheard of mortality. Surely this is a matter that we should not overlook and forget. Though our climate can speak for itself, yet we speak for it.

Another matter which is of prime importance should be mentioned. A friend from northern Colorado reports that the drinking water of the town where he lives is so strongly alkaline in taste and appearance it reminds one of ink! In Denver last week a resident upon Capitol Hill assured me that his family boiled every drop of water which they drank. In Pueblo the mines situated upon the upper Arkansas river from which the city is supplied with water impregnate it with a mixture of mud, mineral and mire from which it is difficult to separate the pure water for healthful use.

In what strong contrast does our drinking water stand as we fill our clearest glasses with it and it gives no color to the crystal cup! Especially when we remember too that its source is defended forever from the factory and the mine by our Pike's Peak reservation. Colorado Springs is all right yet.

NAMES OF STATES.

HOW THE DIFFERENT STATES OF THE UNION WERE NAMED.

Many of the Appellations Are of English Origin—Many Others Are Derived from Old Indian Words—Some Peculiar Meanings in Familiar Terms.

Maine takes its name from the province of Main, in France, and was so called as a compliment to the queen of Charles I, Henrietta, who was its owner.

New Hampshire takes its name from Hampshire, England. New Hampshire was originally called Laconia.

Vermont is French (verd mont), signifying green mountain.

Massachusetts is an Indian word, signifying "country about the great hills."

Rhode Island gets its name because of its fancied resemblance to the Island of Rhodes, in the Mediterranean.

The real name of Connecticut is Quonch-ta-but. It is a Mohegan word, and means "long river."

New York was so named as a compliment to the Duke of York, whose brother, Charles II, granted him that territory.

New Jersey was named for Sir George Carter, who was at that time governor of the Island of Jersey, in the British channel.

Pennsylvania, as is generally known, takes its name from William Penn, the "sylvania" part of it meaning woods. Literally it is "Penn's Woods."

Delaware derives its name from Thomas West, Lord de la Ware.

Maryland was named in honor of Henrietta Maria, queen of Charles I.

Virginia got its name from Queen Elizabeth, the "Virgin Queen."

The Carolinas were named for Charles (Carolus) II.

MEANINGS WORTH REMEMBERING.

Florida gets its name from Kanunas de Flores, or "Feast of the Flowers."

Alabama comes from a Greek word, and signifies "Land of Rest."

Louisiana was so named in honor of Louis XIV.

Mississippi is a Natchez word, and means "Father of Waters."

Three or four Indian interpretations have been given for the word Arkansas, the best being that it signifies "Smoky Waters," the French prefix "Ark" meaning bow.

Tennessee, according to some writers is from Tenasea, an Indian chief; others have it that it means "River of the Big Bend."

Kentucky does not mean "Dark and Bloody Ground," but is derived from the Indian word "Kain-tuk-ae," signifying "Land at the Head of the River."

Ohio has had several meanings fitted to it. Some say that it is a Suwanee word, meaning "The Beautiful River." Others refer to the Wyandotte word, Oheza, which signified "Something Great."

Indiana means land of Indians.

Illinois is supposed to be derived from an Indian word which was intended to refer to a superior class of men.

Wisconsin is an Indian word, meaning "Wild, Rushing Waters."

Missouri means "muddy waters."

Michigan is from an Indian word, meaning "Great Lake."

The name Kansas is based on the same as that of Arkansas.

A VALUABLE LIST.

Iowa is named from an Indian tribe, the Kiowas; the Kiowas were so called by the Illinois Indians because they were "across the river."

The name of California is a matter of much dispute. Some writers say that it first appeared in a Spanish romance of 1530, the heroine being an Amazonian named "California."

Colorado is a Spanish word, applied to that portion of the Rocky mountains on account of its many colored peaks.

Nebraska means shallow waters.

Nevada is a Spanish word, signifying "snow covered mountains."

Georgia had its name bestowed when it was a colony in honor of George II.

The Spanish missionaries of 1521 called the country now known as Texas "Mixtecapah," and the people Mixtecas. From this last word the name of Texas is supposed to have been derived.

Oregon is a Spanish word, signifying "vales of wild thyme."

Dakota means "leagued" or "allied tribes."

Wyoming is the Indian word for "Big Plains."

Washington gets its name from our first president.

Montana means mountainous.

Idaho is a name that has never been satisfactorily accounted for. St. Louis Republic.

Why He Didn't Rise.

Detroit is a lovely city and everybody knows it. The love of it is bred in the bone and never gets out of the flesh. The other Sunday a visiting clergyman addressed the Sunday school of an up town church. After a serious talk he said to the children:

"All of you who desire to live in a better world than this, please rise to your feet."

All the children rose except one small boy in the corner.

The good man looked at him in pained surprise.

"My child," he said, very gently and kindly, "why don't you rise with the others?"

"Detroit's good enough for me, that's why," sung out the youngster, and the solemnity of the occasion was knocked to pieces.—Detroit Free Press.

Parisian "Beef."

In buying beef at cafe or shop you run the risk of getting horse meat. Its long fibers and pinkish blood tell the tale. Americans watch for it with eagle eyes, and their first meal of horseflesh is described with all the minuteness and gusto of the first trip up the Eiffel tower or the first visit to the Grand Opera.—Paris Cor. Pittsburg Dispatch.

Fine shavings from soft pine wood make a pleasant pillow. They have special curative virtues for coughs and lung troubles.

WASTE LAND ON LONG ISLAND

Hundreds of Thousands of Acres of Undeveloped Territory.

It is perhaps needless to remind the reader that there are some 447,000 acres of waste lands in Suffolk county, Long Island. They are now covered with stunted pines, scrub oak and underbrush. If tillable these barren acres are advantageously situated for the experiment of colonization. The question as to their possible fertility has been answered both ways, and it is rapidly appearing, if not already demonstrated, that those who denied their productiveness under proper cultivation have been in error. Years ago Governor John A. Dix called the attention of the New York State Agricultural society to these lands.

Since Governor Dix wrote many successful experiments in cultivation of these lands have confirmed his judgment. None of these can have more interest for the sociologist than that of the Bohemian colony, situated midway between Ronkonkoma and Sayville, in what is now a fertile garden spot that bursts unexpectedly on the view—an oasis in a dense and dreary wilderness of dwarfed oaks and prolific underbrush. This community was formed a score of years ago under circumstances the most unpromising. Near the picturesque little round lake called Ronkonkoma, so deep that local legend pronounces it unfathomable and whose outlet has never been discovered, lies Lakeland, a hitherto wild tract of scrub and furze, on which it was proposed to establish a colony. Among those who were induced to purchase land there in the days when romantically worded advertisements described it as an Eden, were three Bohemian families who had arrived in this country but a short time before.

The heads of these families were John Kertochvil, Joshua Wavra and Joseph Honla. They were honest, credulous folk, unfamiliar with the wiles of the "boomer," and they purchased their land unseen on his representations. But when in the waning autumn they and their wives and little ones beheld Lakeland, its only harvest frost tinted, sun dried crinkling leaves, their hopes sickened and they would have returned to New York if they could. But they were without means to support themselves in the city. Hence, indifferent where it might be found they sought more promising territory toward the south, and after wandering a distance of three miles they knelt in the woods to implore divine direction. By common impulse they were moved to choose the spot where they thus knelt as the center of their settlement.

The men plodded back to Lakeland, and thence laboriously brought their personal effects, the more important of which were a canvas tent and a cooking stove. When shelter was thus secured and an attempt made to kindle a fire it was sorrowfully discovered that there was not a match in the colony; and all Bohemia laughs to this day when the story is told of John Kertochvil seizing his musket and firing the charge into the grate, thus providentially kindling the fire while running the risk of blowing the precious stove to pieces.

The men found work on the Great South bay near by, or on the farms of the southside gentry; and before long each family dwelt in its primitive hut, and men and women unitedly labored to clear the land and prepare it for a crop. The narrative of their struggle would be monotonous. Enough that it was successful. Gradually their numbers were re-enforced by other families of their countrymen, until there are now fifty-two houses and 250 settlers in the colony. Pretty little dwellings they are, too, surrounded by trim gardens and patches of land yielding crops of corn, potatoes and other vegetables as bountiful as can be found anywhere.

The area of Bohemiaville is 1,300 acres, 300 of which are under cultivation. A commodious school building and a public hall evidence the progressive spirit of the villagers, some of whom are old Catholics and others Hussites. Both sects have neat chapels, the Hussite element espousing the forms of episcopacy under the superintendence of the Rev. John H. Prescott, rector of St. Ann's Episcopal church, Sayville. Although English is alone taught in their school, they cling to their mother tongue and to the customs of fatherland, while all ardently cherish the memory of John Huss.—Harper's Weekly.

A Queer Way of Choosing a Wife.

It has remained for a young clergyman, a missionary, to take the palm for a phlegmatic choice of a wife. Having decided that it would be advisable to be accompanied to the mission field by a wife, he undertook to select her with his head, not thinking it necessary that his heart need be considered in the matter. He first made a list of attributes desirable in the wife of a missionary; then, as he went about with the different young women of his acquaintance, he watched for the development of any characteristics corresponding with his record.

When he discovered any he marked a point opposite the young woman's name. When the time came to make the choice he offered himself to that young woman who had achieved the highest percentage in this unique table, and, alas! was accepted. The only redeeming feature of the transaction is his admission made some years after his wedding to a friend. "My wife," he says, "was never courted before her marriage, but she has been assiduously since."—New York Times.

How to Stain and Wax Floors.

The simplest way to apply staining to floors is to put it on with an ordinary paint brush. It is better to apply several coats, in order to get the desired tint. When this has been reached, melt some wax and mix in enough turpentine to make it when it cools a little harder than fresh butter. This mixture must be kept in a tightly stopped bottle or tin, and may be dug out with a broad bladed knife. To apply it place it in small lumps on a rubber made of rags and covered with coarse cotton. With this it is lightly rubbed on the wood. Then make a wooden rubber of soft wood, with a handle like that on a scrubbing brush. The lower edges of the rubber are rounded, of course, and it will be found easy to work if it be attached to a long broom handle by a stout strap iron hinge. With this give the floor a good rubbing until the wax is forced into the wood. If bare spots are seen put on more wax. When this process is finished go over it all with a stiff brush which will polish it until it shines. Floors do not require to be waxed and rubbed more than once in three months, unless they become worn in spots, and these can be "patched" in a few minutes. But they cannot be polished with the brush too often. When kept properly they should always shine.

How to Make Rheumatic Liniment.

Take two ounces sassafras oil, one ounce tincture of prickly ash, one ounce tincture of cayenne and one ounce hemlock oil. Rub the parts affected vigorously. A few applications will relieve the pain, but it is not claimed to be a permanent cure.

How to Make Lemon Flavor at Home.

The oil of the lemon peel is contained in the cells of the outer, yellow rind, and can readily be obtained by rubbing it off with pieces of loaf sugar, which absorb the oil. A fine extract can be made by paring off the yellow portion of the lemon rind. Place in a bottle of rectified spirits of wine, cork tight and steep two weeks. The proportion of parings to spirit should be as four to five by weight.

How to Teach a Horse to Single Foot.

The single foot, or the "rack" as it is called in Kentucky, is an artificial gait, but certain breeds of horses have been educated to it for so many generations that to go the gait has become second nature to them, just as it is natural now for a pointer puppy to point game even before he has been trained. The single foot is a combination of the trot and a jog, and any active and not too mettlesome horse can be broken into it. When the horse has quickened his pace from a walk to a jog, and just as he is about to begin going one degree faster, that is into a trot, if his head be held up with the curb rein, this interference will cause him to move his front feet more quickly and take shorter steps. Then he will be neither trotting nor jogging, but racking. By continuing this operation the horse will soon learn what the rider wishes by the jerk on the curb and will go into the single foot at command. It is the easiest of all gaits on the rider and the hardest on the horse.

A TYPE OF HUSBAND.

HIS IS A NATURE WHICH MOST YOUNG GIRLS SHOULD AVOID.

The Self Importance of a Typical Young Married Man Who Has for a Wife a Sunny Tempered Woman Who Cannot Be Suppressed in Her Efforts to Be Happy.

"I pity that woman."

"Pity her!"

"Yes, with all my heart; watch them!"

She was a bud of a girl wife, and as she sat cozily ensconced in her light gray mackintosh, with its cape and big though inoffensive plaids—the picture of perfect loveliness intrenched against the piercing dampness of the stormy night—one might well marvel at the alien thought of pity. There was the unmistakable suggestion of an exquisitely rounded and graceful figure.

Her eyes were of a deep blue, shaded by dark brows and lashes, and the wavy strands of hair, a shade fainter and more dull than golden, were pressed about the shell like ears by a light veil, which also seemed to hold the pretty little bonnet firmly in place. The face was refined, beautiful and more lovable than intellectual in its outlines, the complexion was fair but colorless—the unimpeachable evidence of an habitual and harmlessly mild dissipation.

They had been to the opera. He sat stiffly and uncomfortably by her side. He was tall and lank and angular, and as he unfastened the two top buttons of his black overcoat there was shown the immaculate front of evening dress. His silk hat leaned, perhaps involuntarily, a little to one side and his little dark eyes increased the impression of a self conscious uneasiness. A thin, dark beard, which evidently wasn't on speaking terms with the mouth, had also defied successfully any artistic intimacy with the barber's shears, and a hectic flush heightened the cheeks.

He occupied only the forward part of his seat, while she cuddled back as far as possible and inclined slightly toward the vacancy behind him. It is needless to add that they were going to their home in Brooklyn.

BRAVE LITTLE WOMAN.

She evidently enjoyed the opera at least, and was anxious to dwell with him upon the scenes which pleased her most. Her mood also was a friendly critical one. He seemed to have a chronic grudge against himself and everybody else who presumed to interrupt his profound communion with his thoughts.

She sat a few moments in silence, then looked up into his face with childish confidence and said something in a loud voice.

His features relaxed, the crease between his thin brows deepened and his face was petulant and fretful as he rolled his eyes toward her, more to let her understand he was about to address her than to look into hers.

"I'd like to know what you know about it, anyway."

She drew back a little in silence at his rough retort, but presently she forgot her chagrin and said something to him again.

"Well, you're a nice person to criticise anything like that, aren't you? Haven't you got any sense at all?"

The little woman blushed, her eyes dropped, the faint smile of interest faded from her face and she sank back again to hide her embarrassment.

A CHRONIC NATURE.

But hers evidently was one of those sunny, open temperaments which soon forget a wrong, especially when perpetrated by a loved one, and it was not long before her countenance was again serenely tranquil, and her happy eyes told of the pleasant thoughts which were flitting through her mind. Soon she looked up again and spoke to him.

"Yes, that's just about like you," he ejaculated sarcastically. "Why don't you wait till you know something of what you are talking about before you begin to criticise? What do you suppose people go to hear it for, anyway? Do you think every one's a fool but you?"

And the man rattled on with his harsh reprimands, seeming to take a supreme delight in verbally chastising the sweet, shrinking little innocent at his side for presuming to exist or endeavoring to make the evening pleasant for him with her inoffensive prattle. As she shrank further and further back in her seat a pleasure drove the blushes from her cheeks, and she had not recovered her courage to speak again when the train stopped at the City Hall station, and they hurried across to the bridge cars.

He is the same, probably, in everything. His is a nature which does not change. They are young, and evidently have not been married more than a year or two.

How long will she endure it?

And at the crisis, which of the two dark crossroads will she take?

"Yes, indeed; I pity that woman."—New York World.

SOME WINTER GOSSIP.

Baseball Men Lay Plans While They May.

ACTIVITY IN THE MINOR LEAGUES

The Campaign Will Be Carried Out on [illegible] Number of Secondary Diamonds [illegible] the Interests of the Great [illegible] will Start

Although winter has but fairly begun [illegible] is a bustle of stirring among the [illegible] in the councils of the magnates. It is a healthy sign of the revival that it is [illegible] safely expected will come with the spring [illegible] the kindergarten of the game need the [illegible] strong care of the United league but [illegible] of the [illegible] organizations are [illegible] [illegible] laying the foundation for another [illegible] race with all [illegible] from the [illegible] [illegible] appointed by the major body to [illegible] [illegible] plan that will replace the [illegible] agreement.

The Western League will cut Denver off [illegible] existing list. That seems assured. [illegible] [illegible] position of a fair [illegible] [illegible] two aunts begging for her hand [illegible] city—like Indianapolis and Milwaukee [illegible] [illegible] by both the Western and [illegible] leagues. The fact that Manager [illegible] H Schmelz is on the Western circuit committee with John W. Speas of [illegible] City and R. W. Maguire of Milwaukee, is significant however. The Central league will perhaps get the mitten [illegible] James A. Williams, who issued the [illegible] for its organization is slated for secretary and treasurer of the Western.

[illegible] C Krantl of one of the members of [illegible] famous and short lived board of control will be elected president but the [illegible] will be honorary. Mr Williams will [illegible] all the labor and in this case he [illegible] lots of it. The Central league projected intended to give the millennial plan—fathered by Frank Richter of [illegible] Life—a practical trial. All the [illegible] are to be signed by the secretary [illegible] distributed by lot. The maximum [illegible] of the various [illegible] outfield [illegible] pitchers and catchers will be fixed [illegible] in this way a salary limit will be [illegible] maintained. The delay of the eastern [illegible] in responding to the call and the [illegible] displayed at Chicago have turned [illegible] of Columbus and Milwaukee to [illegible] the west.

The Illinois and Iowa—facetiously called the Two Eyed League—has installed [illegible] F McKee as president. Five of the [illegible] clubs are in line Rockford Joliet [illegible] Cedar Rapids and Ottumwa. Peoria, Springfield and Burlington will take [illegible] places of clubs that will drop out. [illegible] the far west comes the story of an [illegible] wedding in the baseball family. The California league has led the North [illegible] league to the altar and the Pacific [illegible] Consolidated league is the name of [illegible] new organization. Sacramento and [illegible] Falls retire, and the new circuit [illegible] San Francisco, San Jose and Los Angeles, in California. Portland Or. Seattle and Tacoma in Washington. [illegible] finally won the championship of Pacific coast, but the series was so long [illegible] out and tedious that the closing [illegible] lacked in interest.

[illegible] task of equalizing the playing [illegible] of the twelve clubs in the big [illegible] is progressing, and the interest [illegible] on all sides is gratifying proof [illegible] that in the national game was re[illegible] the moment that the foolish warriors [illegible] their strife.

New York, the tears of the cranks are [illegible] because three famous giants have [illegible] removed from the family and their [illegible] must needs be filled by others. [illegible] Metropolitan p[illegible] is severely caustic [illegible] that the Giants as now constituted will make a grand struggle for [illegible] booby prize. The scribes mourn because Dick Buckley, Dannie Richardson [illegible] Roger Connor were not given return [illegible] to New York by the committee on settlement.

They scout at the idea of Captain Will[illegible] Buckenberger being able to fill the [illegible] of first baseman and point their fingers toward the City of Brotherly Love and [illegible] "Lo, there is Bill Brown! Get him." [illegible] return of Amos Rusie has simply [illegible] the critics to a declaration that [illegible] that Dick Buckley has gone, the ex[illegible] artist from Hoosierdom's capital [illegible] to be no more effective this year [illegible] were Billee Taylor or One Armed [illegible] Daly in their closing days upon the [illegible] New York's nine is decidedly [illegible] but they forget that Jack Boyle [illegible] Denny Lyons have been allotted to [illegible].

Over the river the Brooklynites are just [illegible] as the descendants of Papa Knickerbocker are forlorn. It is generally believed that the team which Captain John Montgomery Ward will lead into the [illegible] next spring will be just as strong [illegible] famous one he commanded during [illegible] days of 1890.

[illegible] Brouthers is booked for first, and [illegible] mayor of Wappinger Falls will be at [illegible] with Captain Ward by his side, for [illegible] will stick to second base. Mr Wil[illegible] Joyce the St. Louisan who gained [illegible] title of "Scrappy" through a tendency [illegible] take the negative side in debates upon [illegible] fell is to play third, and Tom Corcoran has been chosen for shortstop.

Pittsburg is raving madly over the [illegible] Denny Lyons, and the newspapers are [illegible] little Nick Young as a pirate [illegible] from whose presence Captain Kidd [illegible] fled.

Boston [illegible] no change in the infield [illegible] infields are not yet all in [illegible] Cincinnati will come to the [illegible] famous quartet. Captain [illegible] I have absolute control of the [illegible] Reds. He will cover first base [illegible] McPhee at second, George [illegible] and Arlie Latham at third [illegible] fully equipped and the [illegible] four includes Jake Virtue [illegible] Ed McKean and Captain [illegible].

There has been no official declaration [illegible] relative to the position— [illegible] the keystone of the diamond [illegible] has signed Sir Arthur White [illegible] but it looks very much as if [illegible] for Salt river has already been [illegible] Beckley will still stop ground [illegible] first. Bierbauer remains at second [illegible] art plays short. Perhaps Charley Farr[illegible] will be converted into a third [illegible] and relieved from backstop duty [illegible] Louisville Harry Taylor at first, Hugh [illegible] at second, Jimmie Canavan at [illegible] Count Kuehne at third is the [illegible] now outlined.

[illegible] will present Perry Werden at [illegible] Glasscock at short and George [illegible] at third. It is significant that [illegible] of the twelve clubs have captain man[illegible].

GAINED FAME AS "EDMUND KIRKE."

Although Nearly Seventy Mr. Gilmore Is Still Engaged In Literary Work.

James R Gilmore [illegible] year [illegible] Grand View on Hudson [illegible] New York city [illegible] American Biography [illegible] [illegible] as Edmund Kirke [illegible] [illegible] by the public. Its conception was [illegible] [illegible] Gilmore [illegible] with twenty three [illegible] engaged [illegible] and he stopped [illegible] Charleston just three days before the firing of the first gun on Fort Sumter.

With ready [illegible] of the desirability of [illegible] from that center of excitement he displayed sufficient presence of mind [illegible] residence of Colonel [illegible] at Georgetown. In that state [illegible] his way as speedily as possible to Washington. An interview there with President Lincoln led to the establishment of The Continental Monthly, first issued in 1862, whose avowed purpose was aside from its literary character to educate the north to the idea of emancipation as a benefit to the white man and not for sentimental reasons in connection with the then recognized chattels. When that desideratum was secured by the proclamation of Jan. 1, 1863, Mr. Gilmore withdrew from association with this magazine, being succeeded by the Hon. Robert J. Walker, ex governor, ex secretary of the treasury, etc., and Charles G. Leland, who has since become famous in many departments of literature.

One of the first sketches furnished the magazine by Mr. Gilmore, under an assumed name, was an account of his trip northward.

Horace Greeley, a near friend, was charmed with the article (his managing editor, Charles A. Dana, had recopied it in The Weekly Tribune), and at his suggestion the subject was extended into some seven or eight subsequent contributions. The writer's acquaintances and intimates had no knowledge of his personality under the pseudonym of "Edmund Kirke" till Mr. Gilmore was sent on his errand of peace to Richmond by Lincoln, when the fact was declared and his identity revealed.

These articles were such a success they evinced such a thorough knowledge of southern character, characteristics, history and politics that the public's demand for "more" forced Mr. Gilmore to prepare a continuation of the series, and adding four others he published them entire.

It may interest the reader and serve as an incentive to the struggling author to be informed that the royalties paid on the sale of this book amounted to more than $13,000. It was immediately succeeded by "My Southern Friends," which brought the author $12,000 in royalties, and that work was quickly followed by "Down in Tennessee," for the MS. of which the publisher, G. W. Carleton, paid $5,000 cash. What was "Among the Pines?" A stroke of genius, an effort that appealed to the brains of inquiring people and a masterly statement of what actually existed, but it was also [illegible] and only an account of a three weeks' trip from the cotton growing islands of the South Carolina coast to the national capital, with interpolations of scenic descriptions, personal experiences and a relation of conditions seen by the author.

The Speaker's Wife

The wife of Speaker Crisp was born in Ellaville, near her present home in America, Ga. Her father was a planter before the war. She was married to Mr. Crisp while quite young, and four children, two daughters and two sons, bless the union. The greatest grief the Crisps have yet known was a few weeks ago in the death of the elder son. The older daughter is married to a merchant in Americus, while the two younger children are still at school.

Mrs. Crisp has always spent the winters in Washington with her husband since his first election to congress. She is rarely seen at any but the most important events, and it is not likely, owing to the recent bereavement, that she will feel like assuming the social position and accompanying honors belonging to the speaker's wife. She is thoroughly domestic and cares most about being in her Georgia home, where she is accustomed to dispense real southern hospitality. She is about medium height, has dark eyes and hair slightly tinged with gray.

A WINTER IN THE SOUTH

A winter in the South—the very words conjure up delicious memories for those who have been there. The bright sunny skies, the dry bracing air and the warm sunshine is in direct contrast to the cold bleak North.

The great state of Texas is celebrated as a great [illegible] winter resort in itself, but the following places are particularly popular: Fort Worth with its mineral baths, healthful climate and good hotels, Austin the beautiful Capital City; San Antonio, one of the few [illegible] historical places in our country, Houston, with its blooming [illegible], and Galveston with its delicious sea breezes. These are but a few of the delightful [illegible] of this highly favored region.

An escape from all the pains and discomforts of our rigorous weather [illegible] by magic from the realm of snow and ice, to the fragrance of this summer land, is now made possible and easy by the Denver, Texas & Ft. Worth Branch of the Union Pacific System, which [illegible] through Pullman Palace Sleepers between Denver, Ft. Worth, Dallas, Shreveport and New Orleans and offers exceeding low excursion rates to all Southern cities from Denver, Pueblo, Colorado Springs and Trinidad. For a full description of Southern winter resorts reached over the Union Pacific System, or for excursion rates apply to W. G. Rice, Union Pacific Ticket Agent, office 12 Pike's Peak avenue, for a copy of the Union Pacific Winter Tours Folder.

THE GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 27, 1892

Mr. B. H. Feltwell has returned from a trip to New Mexico.

Mr. F. S. Thayer, of Denver, is stopping in the city.

Mr. Ed. Feltwell was initiated a member of the Sons of Veterans on Monday night.

Mr. M. H. Wilbur is able to be about the streets after his severe accident, but is using crutches.

Hear Mr. Risley on recollections of our American public men. These lectures are of exceptional interest.

The name of the Delmonico restaurant on South Tejon street has been changed to "The Denver Restaurant."

H. D. Gartner came down yesterday from Cripple Creek. He reports a genuine boom in both town lots and mining property.

Mr. C. S. Bailey, who has recently located here, returned from Trenton, Mo., yesterday, where he went for his family and household effects.

The attorneys of the city should be present at the district court this morning. Cases set for trial are to be reset for later dates, after Feb. 16.

G. H. Whitson, with the Omaha Hardware company, and T. P. Cartwright, with Williams, Van Arnam & Harte, Omaha, are at the Alamo.

It is estimated that there will be fully one hundred mining cases on the docket of the district court by June 1st, if the mining excitement at Cripple Creek keeps up.

Stated communication of Acacia lodge, A. F. and A. M. this evening. Work in the Master's degree. A full attendance is requested and visiting Masons cordially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Richards arrived at home yesterday from their bridal trip to the east. They leave today for a trip to Salt Lake City to visit Mr. Richards' parents.

Reserved seats are now on sale for the engagement of John L. Sullivan and Duncan B. Harrison in their new play, "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands," at the opera house next Saturday evening.

There will be a box social at the G. A. R. hall on Friday evening, Jan 29th, given by the W. R. C. Every lady is requested to bring a box with lunch for two. A very enjoyable time is anticipated.

The committee appointed by Colorado Springs Typographical union to arrange the reception for the Printers' home opening is composed of J. M. Bolton, F. A. Colby, A. S. Andrews, J. J. Hays and W. A. Nolton.

Robert H. Russell, recently from Philadelphia, has purchased of T. A. Keyes the stock and good will of the Iowa Feed store, No. 9 East Huerfano street. The business is in good hands and a much larger stock carried than heretofore.

There were 1?? persons who purchased tickets into Cripple Creek over the Midland yesterday, about ninety from this city and the remainder from Denver. Of ?? tickets sold on the Midland at this station last Monday, sixty went to Cripple Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Bailey are spending a few days at the Antlers. They are down to overlook the improvements being made at their Manitou hotel, the Mansions, and are very much pleased with what is being done. Mr. Bailey predicts a big season this year.

The Clover club last evening visited the Glockner sanitarium and gave the inmates a delightful musical entertainment, including piano, banjo and vocal music. The occasion was a most enjoyable one, for both the people at the Glockner and for the Cloverites.

Messrs. E. J. Eaton, A. A. McGovney, A. T. Lawton and others of our citizens have secured an interest in the "Cleopatra" mine at Creede. It is on the same vein as the Amethyst and Last Chance mines and is very promising. Mr. H. C. Merrill, a banker of New City, Kan., is interested with them.

In the Council Bluffs Nonpareil of Jan. 20 appears a very favorable notice of a dinner served to the Nebraska Retail Implement Dealers' association at the Grand hotel by Manager E. F. Clark. Mr. Clark will be remembered as the former proprietor of the Club Coffee house and restaurateur at the Broadmoor Casino last fall.

Mrs. G. S. Barnes gave a reception yesterday afternoon at her residence, 317 East Bijou street, in honor of Miss E. J. Merritt, at which there was a large large attendance of the former friends of that lady. Miss Merritt was formerly a teacher in the public schools of this city and a large number of her former pupils were among the guests.

A distinguished party arrived in the city in a special car over the Rock Island yesterday morning, composed of Mr. J. G. Moore, Miss Faith Moore, Miss Ella Moore, Miss Ruth Moore, Miss Bertha Terrell, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Calif and Mrs. W. H. Heath. They are stopping at The Antlers and have come to attend the Moore-Kieffer wedding this evening.

Large crowds heard Mr. H. A. Risley's "Reminiscences of Men in American Public Life," when they were given in this city some six years ago. Many will be glad to hear that they are to be repeated, with additions, and are to be given for the benefit of the Woman's Educational Society of Colorado college, in the First Congregational church, Thursday evenings, January 28th and February 4th.

Mr. Gregg's Temperance Sermon.

Rev. J. B. Gregg preached on Sunday evening a temperance sermon in response to the request made by the Good Templars. The sermon was upon "Unfruitful works of Darkness," and its text was Eph. [illegible] "Have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather even reprove them." The speaker went on to show in the injury done by liquor to the state, the home and the person. He urged that all means of overcoming the evil should be tried and that every American's temperance ballot be employed, [illegible] in the?? legal elections. Every approval [illegible] should be supp[illegible] [illegible] what is called local option [illegible] other states. He [illegible] where a bottomless pit, swallowing up the wealth, the health, the happiness of its victims, swallowing the courage of men and the purity of women. The Good Templars attended the services in a body.

Sudden Death of A. E. Hart.

Mr. Amos E. Hart, one of the old-time residents of Colorado Springs, died suddenly at his home in this city last evening of apoplexy. Mr. Hart was engaged in the express business and after reaching his home about 7 o'clock last evening put up his team and started to the house, but fell outside the door in a fit of apoplexy. He was found by the family and medical aid summoned but death followed in about two hours.

Mr. Hart came to this city from Wisconsin soon after the town was founded. He was of a quiet disposition and greatly respected by those who knew him. He served one term as city marshal, but for several years has conducted an express business. He was about 65 years of age, and leaves a wife and two children residing in the city, Mr. F. B. Hart and Mrs. Jas. P. Barnes. Notice of the funeral will be given later.

Rev. U. Z. Gilmer of Denver delivered the third lecture in the Y. M. C. A. course at the First Presbyterian church last evening. The talk was upon "The Fellow that Wins," and was an informal discussion of true success and how it is to be attained. The lecture was interesting and entertaining, being interspersed with frequent amusing anecdotes. After defining success and the success that we should all strive after, Mr. Gilmer described the various attributes of physical, mental, moral and spiritual health, all of which went to make a successful man in the highest sense of the term.

Roland Reed Last Night.

The annual visit of the well-known comedian, Roland Reed, is an event looked for by our theater goers with great interest. They expect a pleasant entertainment and Mr. Reed never disappoints them. Last night the opera house was filled to the doors by one of the nicest audiences that has assembled there the present season. The play was "The Club Friend," written for Reed by Sidney Rosenfeld and now in its first season. As a play it is the best thing that Mr. Reed has ever been seen in here, but it lacks the go and dash that we are accustomed to in Mr. Reed's plays. Mr. Reed, as Stuyvesant Filbert, the club friend, has a part in which he gets in some of his best work, but is not quite written up to his style. The supporting company was excellent, composed of a fine looking body of men and pretty women, and all of them artists. Miss Isadore Rush, one of the handsomest women on the stage, is still the leading lady and had a suitable part in Evelyn Oaks. Mrs. Mary Meyers is still with the company. Both ladies had ample opportunity to display some handsome dresses. Miss Edna Wallace is a very pretty young actress who did some clever work in the part of Sylvia. A member of the company is the old-time actor Mr. William Davidge, who creates a fine character in Makepeace Frawley. Percival Jarvis, the fashionable doctor, is an excellent piece of work in the hands of George F. Nash. The same can be said of Abram Oaks in the hands of Charles A. Smiley, a part that is usually overdone, the jealous husband. During the evening Mr. Reed was called before the curtain and gave one of his characteristic speeches. He will long remain a favorite in this city.

"Honest Hearts and Willing Hands."

The next attraction at the opera house will be the world's champion, John L. Sullivan, in Duncan Harrison's new play entitled "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands" on Saturday evening. The Philadelphia Enquirer says: "The immense and enthusiastic audience that packed the elegant People's theater last night came with the intention of giving a big ovation to the 'big fellow,' and a rousing reception he received. For nearly three minutes he had to stand bowing, rather abashed at the warmth of his reception and welcome to the Quaker city. The play was presented for the first time in Philadelphia and instantly caught on. Duncan B. Harrison, as John Daly, and John L. Sullivan as his brother James, exemplified to the letter the meaning of the title. From the 'drifting clouds' in act I. to the final 'sunshine,' at the termination of the last act from the incipient evil machinations of the villain to the final foiling of his villainy, the play was steeped in interest, cropping out into intense enthusiasm whenever the 'champion figured conspicuously.'"

Death of W. B. Faunce.

Many people in this city were grieved yesterday evening to learn of the death of Mr. W. B. Faunce, who died at his residence, 524 North Nevada avenue, at 4:45 p. m. Mr. Faunce came to this city some five or six years ago from Philadelphia, where he was a member of the hardware firm of Lloyd, Supplee & Walton. His health was very poor but was improving until last fall he was nearly a well man. About two weeks ago he exposed himself too much while driving and caught a bad cold. Grippe set in and then hemorrhages and heart failure sapped the remnants of life. Mr. Faunce was about 40 years old. He leaves a wife and one child. The date of the funeral and the place of interment have not yet been decided upon. Mr Faunce was well known to most of our citizens, and was a most genial and pleasant gentleman. He was largely interested in real estate at one time.

Manitou.

The Cliff house will re open Feb 15.

Mr C. W Barker is in Denver this week on business.

A series of revival services is being held in the First M. E. church.

Maj John Hulbert returned yesterday after spending several days in the state capital.

Mrs J. E. Newton has left for a three months' visit with her sister at Lake Charles, La.

The Barker house will open for the Raymond excursions, the first of which will arrive March 18.

How to Make a Barrel Trap.

This is the simplest and most ingenious trap made, and is particularly available for the catching of skunks. Put a stone on the ground and lay a barrel across it so that the open end will just overbalance the other end and therefore rest upon the ground. Put a piece of meat in the high end. The skunk walks up to it, his weight tips the barrel down and he is captured. The only objection to this trap is that it is interfered with by heavy winds.

UTE PASS PLACERS.

A Reported Extensive Gold Field at Green Mountain Falls.

Some days since THE GAZETTE published an item to the effect that gold had been found at Green Mountain Falls, and since then quite a boom has started in the Green Mountain Falls company's stock. It is reported that on the company's lands there has been discovered quite a large bed of gold bearing gravel, and some placer claims have been staked off on property adjoining. It is not possible as yet to state how rich these placers are, as very little prospecting has been done, but it is said that the company intends to go on and satisfy themselves as to the amount of precious metal in the ground. Even if there was a very small amount the placers could be profitably worked, as there is any amount of water in Fountain creek which can be used with hydraulic "giants."

If gold is discovered in large quantities at Green Mountain Falls it may lead to the discovery of rich lodes much nearer than Cripple Creek. Placers are sometimes scores of miles from the rock, which disintegrating, liberates the precious flakes, but at Green Mountain Falls those cannot be far off. The formation in the immediate vicinity is of ordinary rose granite in which metal is not likely to be found, but Green Mountain Falls is near the rim of the Ute Pass basin and so whatever may have washed down cannot have come from far. At the head of Queen's canon some indications of gold have been found and veins may be found either here or at the northeast base of Pike's Peak, which would be directly in a line with an extension of the Cripple Creek gold belt.

The whole matter is not yet beyond the region of conjecture and until the bottom of the canon is thoroughly exploited, people had better not be climbing the steep side with pick and shovel.

How to Stock a Lunch Basket for a Long Railroad Trip.

No person, man or woman, should ever start on a railroad trip without a well stocked lunch basket. A trip only intended to last six hours has been known to last six days, and an overland train is often blockaded two and three weeks. In the first place, a square wicker basket has better stowing capacity than any other. On the bottom put a layer of small tins of sardines, potted chicken, pates, or any of the preserved meats that are best liked; also a can opener. Above them have one of these little alcohol tripod stoves that cost twenty-five cents, a pint tin cup, one or more cans of condensed milk, a pound of sugar in one closed tin canister and tea or coffee in another. A small tin coffee or teapot and a pint of alcohol are also to be packed in. Half a dozen lemons should come next, and at least one a day should be eaten with the food as a corrective. A small bottle of olives or pickles are also nice; so is cold tongue, or better still a nice chicken cooked at home. The rest of the space should be filled in with oatmeal and small crackers, bread and apples or other fruit, and if there is any room more lemons and perhaps some plain cake. No pie, it mashes and doesn't look tasty. The meats and bread, if any, should be wrapped in waxed paper, and a couple of dozen of Japanese paper napkins put in, with a knife, fork and spoon, and a pretty mug for coffee and a plate can be tucked in somewhere. You can make coffee or tea with one of those little spirit lamps. To pack as much as is mentioned here you require a basket about eighteen inches long, a foot wide and a foot deep. It will hold sufficient for a week's rations.

How to Converse.

Speak distinctly, and neither too rapidly nor too slowly. Never speak with your mouth full. Tell your jokes first, and laugh afterward. Do not use superfluous words. Appear sincere, avoiding conceit and affectation. Never force a laugh, and only talk when you have something interesting to tell.

How to Estimate Shingles for a Roof.

There is an easy method of calculating the number of shingles necessary to cover a roof: Get the length of the ridgepole in inches and multiply it by the length in inches from the ridge pole to the edge of the eaves. Cut off the right hand figure and the result will be the number of shingles required for both sides of the roof.

How to Get Rid of Superfluous Hair.

First get a pair of wide pincers and sew kid on the ends tightly, so as not to cut the hairs. Then take soft pitch pine, or failing that, get an ounce of resin and ounce of turpentine and let them stand in a bottle with a wide mouth over night. The turpentine dissolves the resin and it becomes sticky. Rub a little of this on the edges of the kid covered pincers and then take hold of the hairs one or two at a time and pull them with a slow, even movement, avoiding any jerk which will break the hair. In this way the hair will be pulled out of its place root and all bringing usually the little fat follicle and breaking up the nerve cell that kept the hair alive. After the hair is out, touch the place with a little clear turpentine and then wipe the whole off with cold cream. Repeating this process a few times will cure the worst cases of superfluous hairs. The turpentine should be used sparingly, as it stings, but the cold cream will calm that and the skin will not be injured in the slightest degree.

How to Make Butter Scotch.

Boil together for ten minutes half a pound of brown sugar, a tablespoonful of vinegar and a gill of water, add two ounces of good butter and boil until it will snap in the fingers. Turn out into greased pans, mark out into squares and let it get cool.

About Our Grocery Department.

We wish to correct a prevailing error in regard to our Grocery Department. Last October we advertised a "closing out sale," and we sold out of nearly everything in the grocery line, as we were forced to in order to make room for our immense stock of strictly Holiday goods that we were having purchased in Boston at that time and were arriving here by every train. We needed the room our Grocery department took up, to display to advantage the Christmas stock, and we utilized every inch of space possible. Our wonderful success in filling all our Holiday Goods, our immense advertisements, and the crowds that thronged our store during holiday week are well known to the residents of this city. We had no old, last year's stock to sell for it was our first Christmas here, and consequently our customers got only the very newest and latest things of this and foreign markets. After Christmas having some vacant room we decided to start our Grocery department again with a full stock of new, fresh goods.

OUR GROCERY DEPARTMENT

is now running with a better class of goods than before and a more complete stock. We have everything and we sell at a small profit and LOWER than any store in town. We have this week 500 pounds of the celebrated Mocha and Java coffee that we had when we opened our store last June. It is the best coffee in the market and we get it direct from Houghton & Dutton. Our success with it, when we first opened was so great that the first invoice sold out in a short time, and we didn't re-order it as we supposed we could get as good coffee in this market, but a great many of our customers were dissatisfied and wanted "Boston coffee." [illegible] from now on we will always keep it in stock and customers wanting the "best" coffee in this city must ask for our "Mocha or Java" from "H & D.," Boston. The price is 45 cents per pound. Our delivery will be prompt and all goods bought up to 1:30 p. m. will be delivered that day. We make special prices on different goods for certain days only, so by watching our advertisements customers can take advantage of a great many bargains.
